Title: My Character Creation

Fall/2020:

Where to start? The inspiration of my character comes from many years of wanting to write my own story. I always had in the back of my mind a story to tell yet I never had that reason to bring it to life. From a very young age I've always had an imagination and i brought it to life through my art, however those were always one and done. About a year ago I began game design. I created a world, coding, and bringing random ideas into place. However what it lacked was a story. So i would like to take this time to say thank you, i never imagined that the day i decided to take a selfie and mess around with photoshop a story began to fall in place. And every time i get to think about a story and look at the character more and more is added or changed. Now I am on board with this . It's difficult for me to do more or work on the design of my character, i am a full time student and have a full time job to provide for my kids. However some nights like this at almost 4am finishing this up makes me proud of what is slowly shaping. It's a rough draft for now, all concepts, that i intend to bring full circle one day to something i am truly proud of. So welcome to the world of my Character 4head. I need a title for this story but ill give it more time it'll come to me eventually.
